Ocean Boiling. After sailing through miles of water

so hot that the cook declared he was able to boil eggs in the steam that arose from it, the British s'eamer Lothian arrived at New York yesterday from Japan and China. The boiling water is sup-posed to have been caused by submarine volcanic disturbances, and altogether it is figured that the Lothian steamed through fifty miles of the midocean hot springs. The ship was between Hong-Kong and Cebu and was making twelve knots an hour in a tranquil sea when the water began to boil. The mate of the Lothian said yesterday that the first knowledge they had of the boiling of the water was when the corrections. water was when the ocean all around the ship began to crackle. It was like the noise of burning wood. At the same time the ocean began to bubble like a pot of oatmeal. There was no such as might be expected when water boils. The atmosphere for twenty-five feet above the sea was perfectly clear, but that steam arose until it was condensed by the air. No distinct shock passed through the boiling-water zone.
Meanwhile the cargo grew hot and the crew feared for the consignment of fireworks that was on board. The cook says the ship was so bot that he made griddle cakes on the top of the rail. The members of the crew were almost frightened out of their wits. They had never heard of a boiling midocean and they were not caimed even by the griddle

The Baces.

At Benning yesterday the racing season of 1906 in the east was inaugurated in a manner befitting the importance of the spring meeting of the Washington Jockey Club. Many horses have been win-tered at the track, and strings of thoroughbreds have been arriving every day for a week. When the bugler sounds the "assembly" more horses will be quartered at Benning than ever before, many of them racers of high class.

Officials of the club bave been at the track for several days completing arrangements for the opening of the meeting. Since last fall numerous improvement have been made at Benning which will have been made at bearing when the appreciated by both owners and racegoers. The courses have been gone over thoroughly, the open winter having afforded opportunity for the working of the track until now it is in admirable condition. Needed changes and improve-ments in the grandstand and clubbouse have been made, and everything about the grounds is as spick and span as if it were quite new.
